

Highlights

- Gradient-norm loss balancers fail silently on losses decoupled from their anchor.
- The failure direction is fixed by the balancer: weight collapses to zero or explodes.
- A cheap anchor-coupling ratio detects invisible losses at run time.
- An anchor-robust wrapper fixes both directions with no manual tuning.